Monologue PERSONALITY

	The text of the monologue	Vocabulary, Grammar Structures, Linking Words and Phrases
Step 1. Introduction 1. Start with a hook sentence that will attract the listener's attention, a quote, a proverb, etc. 2. Lead your speech steadily to the main part of your talk. 3. The introduction may consist of 3-6 sentences.	«Do you ever look at someone and wonder what is going on inside their head? ». Everyone has a different personality. Some character traits unite us, some differ us from each other. It is what makes people them who they are.
Step 2. Personality Types 2.1. Speak about two personality types (extroverts and introverts). What tells you more about a person's personality: their clothes, their body language, their voice, their tastes or something else?  2.2. What personality types would some jobs (e.g. a computer programmer, a researcher, etc.) attract and why?	In today's world, a common way to get to know someone is to ask whether they are an introvert or an extrovert. These two personality types have different characteristics. Introverts are reserved and incline to keep to themselves, while extroverts are outgoing, talkative and make friends easily. Introverts tend to think and consider before taking action , while extroverts, on the contrary , often act first and think later . However , there are also people who have characteristics of both introverts and extroverts , known as ambiverts. Ambiverts can be good team players , but prefer to be internally focused. It's important not to judge person's character by their outward appearances, as many people may have a different inner state to what is assumed. To my mind, if you lack confidence, it will prevent you from success in the future career. What really matters is your passion, hard-work and self-confidence. Based on all that was mentioned above, I think that extroverts could have worked as actors, toastmasters, organisers of various events, and introverts would better work as programmers, economists or accountants, as it is easier for them to keep one's temper .
Step 3. Charisma 3.1. What is charisma? Give an example of a charismatic personality and explain why you find him/her charismatic.  3.2. Is charisma the most important quality to possess if you want to be successful in your career? If not, what other qualities are important?	Charisma is the ability to inspire people and the ability to encourage them to do something . It is easy to recognise a person as charismatic, but it can be difficult to pinpoint what skills or qualities make them charismatic. There are different types of charismatic people, some may be quiet but charm others with their personal magnetism, while others are passionate communicators who captivate others with their enthusiasm. I believe charisma is an inborn quality . However, there are many people who use charisma in a negative way , to detriment of others. So, it is important to be careful and follow someone not blindly . A good example of a charismatic person is John Kennedy, who used

	his charisma and wit to get into various positions. He believed that those who dared to fail miserably could achieve greatly. He knew how to draw people to him. It is important to remember that success is not solely determined by charisma or personality type. What really matters is your willingness to learn, improve your skills and stay true to yourself no matter what the challenges are.
Step 4. CREATIVE THINKING Introduce your own extra idea(s) on the topic that hasn't / haven't been mentioned before. Justify your choice.	I would also like to tell you that many psychologists have developed various tests with the help of which a person can measure their personality qualities and identify their personality type. If you take one of the personality tests, it will help you to look inwards and know yourself better.
Step 5. Conclusion Summarise the ideas of steps 2, 3, 4.	The old saying "We are all the same, but different" means that we all share the same basic human characteristics, such as our bodies, minds, thoughts and feelings, but each person is unique in his or her own way. This is why it is said that people's attitude to the world can't be the same, because the way we think, feel and behave is different from others, and this shows our personality.
